Profile

Tom Fisher is a senior associate in FISCHER's Corporate Department, specializing in banking, finance, and commercial law.

Tom advises public and private companies on complex financing transactions and regulatory compliance.

Tom's practice covers syndicated lending, acquisition finance, project financing, and real estate financing, including cross-border transactions. He represents both lenders and borrowers, drafting and negotiating facility agreements, cross-border security documents (including collateral agreements, pledges, and guarantees), intercreditor agreements, and a wide range of credit and security documentation.

Tom is also admitted to the New York State Bar.

Before joining FBC, Tom practiced at a leading Israeli law firm, advising on banking, finance, and real estate transactions. He holds a dual degree in Law and Business Administration with a specialization in Finance from Reichman University.

Tom's combination of technical proficiency, commercial insight, and international perspective makes him a trusted advisor in sophisticated financing matters.
