

Life Sciences & Healthcare

Profile

FBC has developed broad expertise in the life sciences field. It represents the most prominent multinational and local players in a broad range of areas, including biopharmaceuticals, biotechnology, medical devices, medical services, genomics, diagnostics, medical IT and health care services, all in various stages of development. Clients range from medical device and bio-technology start-ups, to international "big pharma" companies, and venture capital funds that focus on life science and health care companies.

FBC regularly advises life sciences companies on both public and private equity and debt financings, mergers and acquisitions, research and development financing, and technology licensing, as well as on day-to-day matters.

FBC advises on life sciences and healthcare regulatory issues, including pharmaceuticals, biotechnology and medical devices. The practice counsels clients with regards to compliance with the Ministry of Health's requirements and the approval process for registration, labeling, importation, production, drug safety (pharmacovigilance) and product liability and marketing of pharmaceutical products in Israel.

FBC's practitioners maintain close ties with the venture capital funds, strategic players and private investors most active in this field and leverage the firm's relationships to assist its clients.
